Forecast for Sunday 20 Jun 2021

Weather: Low cloud will spread across much of the park, but particularly in the east where there's also the greatest risk of some heavy rain. Outbreaks of light rain continuing everywhere through the early hours of the morning before largely fading away by 09:00, although some patchy drizzle may continue on the summits throughout the day. The cloud will slowly begin to breakup and lift from mid-afternoon onwards, with occasional bright or clearer spells possible by evening.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 10% chance during the morning, rising to 60% from 15:00.

Visibility: Cloud bases widely 300-400m through the morning. This lowering to 100-200m in association with any rain first thing, which will give very poor visibility. Visibility improving from 15:00, with cloud bases steadily lifting above the summits, with patches of cloud remaining at around 600-800m.

Meteorologist's View

Rain in the morning will make paths and slopes wet and slippery. Caution is advised through the rest of the day as reduced amounts of sunlight will prevent things from drying.

Forecast for Monday 21 Jun 2021

Weather: A drier start to Monday with scattered high-based cloud. Some sunny spells developing during the day, but the risk of patchy light rain moving across eastern areas of the park through the evening.

Maximum wind: On the summits, northeasterly 20mph and gusting 30mph.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 70% through the day

Visibility: Cloud bases largely above the summit, but isolated patches of cloud at 700-800m possible. Otherwise, largely good visibility and views of adjacent hills.

Temperature: Valleys: Plus 11 Celsius, rising to plus 17 Celsius.
At 800m: Plus 5 Celsius, rising to plus 7 Celsius.
Freezing level: Above the summits throughout the day.
